

Fig. 1. ROS are generated by mitochondria, but can also be produced by them under stress. The production of ROS causes lipid peroxidation and inositol trisphosphate stimulation, ROS activate PARPs which inhibit mitochondrial glucose with neuronal damage.